Dear Genealogist

As each New Year starts I often wonder what will be new for genealogists and don't we already have everything we need. However we listen to our customers and develop ideas from what you ask about so this catalogue yet again has some great new products exclusive to My History that we have commissioned from our suppliers.

We even have a revamped Family Tree Maker program that at one point looked destined to be part of history itself. I am pleased to report that the program has been bought by an extremely enthusiastic and capable publishing company and I am sure we will see it develop well over the coming years. See page 47.

The publisher of Family Historian has also committed to working with the UK company findmypast to develop research links so all of a sudden we see two bestselling programs open up a bright future for software on home computers.

We hope you continue to make breakthroughs with your research.

Working Chart

Our Working Charts are proving very popular with customers, as it is especially useful where there is a desire to show siblings and their descendants on a chart. It has no predetermined family structures thus allowing you to add any number of siblings to a family. Works best for 'descendant' and 'all-relatives' charts.

More details on page 33.

We can help you print your family tree from Ancestry, Findmypast and other online services

Our new online chart design service has been specially commissioned to allow you to convert your online tree into an impressive printed tree to share with all your family. Full details on page 35.

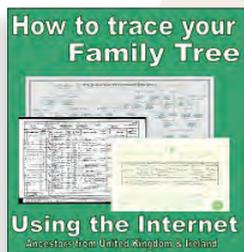

Just upload your gedcom data file (full instructions given) and create as many charts as you like before choosing which one to have printed. This service is free and PDF charts will be available for you to view and download in just a few minutes. All you pay for is the cost of printing the tree and post and packing.

Are you serious about preserving your past?

Are you having difficulty storing certificates in ordinary A4 folders? Do you have concerns about the long term storage of old photographs? Do you know the life expectancy of the paper you are printing on? These are just some of the concerns our customers have about preserving their research for their own descendants. Did you know that even storing data on CDs can be problematic as these can deteriorate over time and once corruption begins whole photographs and sections of data can be lost forever. Serious archivists still prefer to see printed documents as these have been proven to last hundreds of years if printed out on acid free paper and stored carefully.

We stock the 'Parkinson' brand of archive binders, albums and hold-alls, recognised for its quality for many years by archivists in libraries and museums.

The four binders below are suitable for storage of both tradition long certificate and modern certificate copies.

Standard Certificate Binder (See Page 6)

Deluxe Certificate Binder (See Page 7)

Premier Certificate Box Binder (See Page 8)

Leather Certificate Binder (See Page 9)

A3 Landscape Ring Binder (See Page 19)

A3 Family History Hold-All (See Page 20)

The binder below is suitable for modern certificate copies from the General Register Office and your local register office or for other landscape printouts such as census printouts or similar.

A4 Landscape Binder (See Page 10)

TIP: What order should documents go into a folder?

There is no right or wrong way for this but many genealogists use the divider sets to divide up their documents by family name. Within a name you could file a marriage certificate followed by the birth certificates of any children and the death certificates of the parent followed by the marriages of children and their families etc. It is probably more interesting to file the oldest documents first followed by more recent additions towards the back of the binder.

TIP: Where may certificates be ordered from?

Once you have the name and location of a birth, death or marriage as well as the quarter year in which it happened then you will need to order from the relevant local registrar or from the General Register Office (GRO) at Southport. The web address for the GRO is www.gro.gov.uk

Storing Old Photographs

There are two aspects to storing photographs.
1) How best to store the originals. 2) How best to pass copies of them on to various descendants. (Of course one lucky descendent will get the originals). From an archiving perspective it is important that your old photos are stored to prolong their life. Scanning them will allow you to present them in family tree charts, reports or dedicated photograph albums that may be duplicated as many times as you wish.

We do not recommend encapsulating photos in plastic using a laminating machine or the use of albums with stick down plastic coverings. This can be harmful to photographs even in the short term.

Publishing Your Family History

At My History we are always looking for ways to make your life easier when it comes to sharing your family history research with others. We know how tedious it is sticking lots of pieces of paper together to make a chart or printing and photocopying many pages of work in order to pass on knowledge to others in the family.

There is always a feeling that there is more work to be done but at the same time wouldn't it be wonderful to give a beautifully bound copy of your work or a quality rolled up chart as a present to someone else in the family. What better way to pass on your work for others to treasure in future years.

Do something today; don't just leave your work to chance for descendants to stumble across in digital format.

On the following pages we offer; pre-printed charts for you to fill in, our chart printing service, springback binders and our new 'print & bind' book publishing.

A4 Archive Quality Permanent Paper (Acid-Free)

You can print your family tree information including photographs onto this paper knowing it has been guaranteed by the manufacturer for 200 years. Suitable for use in both inkjet and laser jet printers, and of course you may also write on it.

This paper goes one better than Acid-free paper. It is manufactured to ISO 9706, meaning that it must conform to a particular set of standards such as pH level, alkaline reserve (calcium carbonate equivalent), tear resistance and resistance to oxidation. It is the alkaline reserve that helps the paper resist contamination from external sources over the years.

Working Charts

We have spent considerable time getting this idea just right for customers who wish to write up their family tree by hand. It will be especially useful where there is a desire to show siblings and their descendants on the chart as there are no predetermined family structures thus allowing you to add any number of siblings to a family. Works best for 'descendant' or 'all-relatives' charts.

Printed with faint lines and boxes that are un-noticed when the chart is filled in with pencil or ink pen. There are 22 boxes per linear metre on each row of the chart. When considering the length of chart required you will need to think about the number of children in each generation that you wish to record. We also advise leaving at least one box space between families to make the chart easier to follow. Each box is 38 x 30mm.

Supplied with mini sticky notes and instructions to help you plan your chart. Two heights of chart available; 24 inch - 10 generations or 33 inch - 14 generations. Ordering longer lengths and cutting to the length required will save you money.

Bookmaking Information

Some family tree software packages will allow you to set up a series of reports and charts in the form of book pages. The software will allow you to write a title page and automatically create a contents page and an index. It also numbers all the pages thus making a complete work for publication and distribution to other family members.

Whilst we are convinced at My History that many younger members of the family will be happy to receive your work in digital format by way of a website on CD or a copy of your data file, we also believe that there is no better way of preserving a link to the past than with a printed document.

This is because we believe it is still the most accessible way to present information to a wide audience and will never be reliant on any technology other than the quality of the paper used.

The information presented does not have to be every detail from your tree and at the very least will provide an introduction to the family archive encouraging our inquisitive descendants to access the extra data locked away in a digital format.

Two of the most popular packages at the moment for producing books are Family Tree Maker and Family Historian v6.

Family Tree Maker

Family Tree Maker is one of the most popular programs used by genealogists all over the World. The program works closely with Ancestry.co.uk therefore making it a great choice for complete beginners who wish to take advantage of feature that allows the downloading of ancestor information directly into their family tree within the program

Family Tree Maker makes it easier than ever to discover your family story, preserve your legacy and share your unique heritage. If you're new to family history, you'll appreciate how this intuitive program lets you easily grow your family tree with simple navigation, tree-building tools, and integrated Web searching. If you're already an expert, you can dive into the more advanced features, options for managing data, and a wide variety of charts and reports. The end result is a family history that you and your family will treasure for years to come!

My History Trade Directories and Data CDs

During 2012 we bought the business of Jigrah Resources so that we could bring to you a huge range of over 200 trade directories for towns and counties around the UK. You will find a complete list of all the trade directories we stock on the following eight pages.

These directories will often indicate both a business address and a home address for people in business or professionals from shoemakers to solicitors and landlords of pubs, beer houses and Inns. They often also include a huge amount of extra information such as; details of towns and villages, times of coaches and delivery services etc.

Whilst this won't always help you find a family member it can assist you with understanding what a place was like when your ancestor lived there. This information can often be added to your family history to make it a more interesting read.

In addition to the directories listed we have a large backlog of directories to scan over the coming year so please take a look at our website occasionally to see the latest listings: www.my-history.co.uk

To the left is just a sample of a page from a directory indicating the diversity of the businesses included in such a publication. There is often a separate section for residential addresses.

The adverts in these directories are also fascinating to read as they will often give a clue as to what our ancestors were likely to be buying to keep up with the latest fashions and technology.

The following three pages contain a listing of the directories we have available on CD for counties and towns in the UK. Find your county to see what directories we have available. Searching for your Ancestors Online - Vouchers & Subscriptions

What is the best site for searching for ancestors?

We often get asked this question and over the years our answer hasn't really changed. There are two large suppliers of data that most genealogists will need to link to at some point in their research. Findmypast and Ancestry are both excellent sources for records and for various reasons when you can't find something on one you may well find it on the other. However other sites such as Family Search, Forces War Records, Free BMD, My Heritage and The Genealogist all have something to offer and even more so when you consider that they are probably the ones specialising in smaller record sets that the larger suppliers are perhaps ignoring. Please go to our website www.myhistory.co.uk for a more detailed explanation of the above sites.

NEW!

The 1939 Register from Findmypast

In December 1938 it was announced in the House of Commons that in the event of war, a National Register would be taken that listed the personal details of every civilian in Great Britain and Northern Ireland. This Register was to be a critical tool in coordinating the war effort at home. It would be used to issue identity cards, organise rationing and more.

The enumerators were charged with the task of visiting every household in Great Britain and Northern Ireland to collect the names, addresses, marital statuses and other key details of every civilian in the country. Visit the My History website for links to this and other site containing data to help you with your family history.

Free or Subscription websites

There are a few sites on the internet where you may search for your ancestors without being charged. For a full list of these please see the right-hand side bar of our home page at www.my-history.co.uk

Other sites such as Find My Past and Ancestry charge for viewing their records not only because of the high cost of scanning them but also because they are investing in scanning and transcribing even more records. You may purchase subscriptions online or by voucher (Find My Past only) from My History.
